
Marc Duret, Managing Director, Framatome UK Ltd

My vision for the New Build Group: New Build is a fast changing sector in the UK and around the globe. Despite nuclear energy receiving a growing recognition as a key contributor to decarbonising our economies, previous New Build delivery models will need to be adjusted in the years to come due to new political or financing requirements.

Building on the excellent work performed by Tris over the past three years, I aim to keep developing the NIA New Build Group as an open and interactive forum where members are able to provide or find the relevant information and network they need to successfully develop business opportunities and anticipate tomorrow's challenges.

My background: I am a chemical engineer holding an MBA from the Imperial College and an Executive MBA from HEC Paris business school. I have worked in the nuclear industry for nearly 30 years, the first half of it in operations of spent fuel reprocessing and the second half in the New Build business. My current role is Managing Director of Framatome UK Ltd. I am based in London but spend most of my time in Bristol next to our Hinkley Point C stakeholders. I am responsible for Framatome's development of business operations; overseeing operational performance, customer relationships and project successes. While driving growth in Framatome's core business and amplifying nuclear power's contribution to the country's net-zero carbon initiatives, I lead my team focusing on our company values of excellence in safety, quality, performance and delivery.

Previously, I held executive positions on the Olkiluoto 3 project in Finland. Following that I was appointed International Offers Director within Framatome's New Builds business, working first on the EPR bid for Horizon Nuclear Power before the project was transferred to Hitachi and later leading the negotiations for the Framatome contracts for the Hinkley Point C project.

My commitment: I commit to bring to New Build Group members my network and experience in delivering international civil nuclear New Build projects. With your support we will grow our collective understanding on upcoming challenges New Build is a huge commercial opportunity for the UK supply chain and I aim to support NIA New Build Group members to obtain maximum benefit from that opportunity.

If you would like to share views on New Build please do not hesitate to contact me on

Tel : 07979046619

marc.duret@framatome.com
